Abstract Of The Disclosure

Method and apparatus for treating a waste material containing gelatin in which the waste material is combined with a solvent capable of dissolving the gelatin and any softening agent contained therein and then treating the solvent based layer to remove oils and particulates which may be present to provide a recoverable and usable gelatin containing stream.